bearing healthy children, and choosing legal abortion.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON CHOICE 114TH CONGRESS, 1ST SESSION

As has been true for several years, in 2015, Congress remained extremely hostile to the issue of reproductive freedom: although the American public remains strongly in favor of legal abortion, only 37 of 100 senators and 166 of 435 House members are fully pro-choice.

When the 114th Congress convened in January, anti-choice leaders took control in both chambers for the first time since 2006; they immediately launched a number of attacks on reproductive freedom. In fact, 2015 marks the highest number of choice-related votes in Congress since 1998. NARAL Pro-Choice America's 2015 Congressional Record on Choice documents the key choice-related House and Senate votes taken during the first session of the 114th Congress:

- Attacks on Planned Parenthood: Anti-choice lawmakers capitalized on a series of heavily edited, misleading videos about Planned Parenthood's practice of fetal-tissue donation and renewed their campaign to defund the organization. Anti-choice leaders quickly forced a series of congressional hearings and floor votes to disqualify the organization from seeing patients in federal health-care programs. The House passed these votes by wide margins, but the Senate blocked similar attempts.

- Hyde Attacks: The year also was marked by repeated attempts to insert the Hyde amendment, the current-law ban on public coverage of abortion care, into a number of unrelated bills, including Medicare-reform legislation, a bill to provide aid to human-trafficking survivors, and biomedical-research legislation. Pro-choice amendments to strike the provisions failed.
- 20-Week Abortion Ban: Anti-choice leaders attempted again to enact a nationwide ban on abortion at 20 weeks. Initially, they were stalled by the objections of some of their own members to the bill's inadequate exception for victims of rape and incest, but after making revisions (that made the legislation even worse), the House took up the bill and passed it easily, while the Senate subsequently blocked it. (The Senate vote tally was 54-42 (60 votes required); however, according to public statements, had all senators been present and voting, there would have been 46 votes in opposition.)
- Interference in Abortion Practice: Also spurred by the attacks on Planned Parenthood, the House passed a bill to reopen the Born-Alive Infants Protection Act – a 2002 law that the pro-choice community did not and does not oppose. Unlike current law, however, the new House-passed legislation directly intrudes upon medical care and includes penalties so severe they can only be intended to intimidate abortion providers out of practice. Fortunately, the Senate did not take up the bill.

- Stupak on Steroids – Again: The House again passed a bill effectively to ban abortion coverage in state health-insurance exchanges and penalize small businesses that purchase private health plans that include abortion coverage. The House passed similar legislation in the 112th and 113th Congresses, but the Senate has yet to take up the proposal.

In short, 2015 was a year of unrelenting anti-choice attacks in Congress, demonstrating the wide gulf between a vastly pro-choice American public and a Congress dominated by a vocal anti-choice minority. As congressional and presidential elections approach in 2016, we will continue to defend against these attacks, to hold lawmakers accountable for their actions, and to fight for the pro-choice champions who will not only block these attempts but proudly carry forth a pro-choice vision that Americans support.
